

I believe there is a shortage of interpreters at this point to require a specific speed of answer. However, I think the FCC should invest in the future of the service and the workforce providing funds to training programs to train interpreters and thereby increase the number of interpreters available.